I have seen the following wildlife in the Green Harbor River located by Dike Road, Marshfield, MA.:

Striped bass
Flounder
Crabs
Quahogs
Muskrats
Herring

When I was young, we used to jump from the top rail of the road into the high tide of the river. It was about twelve to fifteen feet deep back then (around 1968). I remember finding some quahogs in the river one day but later throwing them back because we didn't think they would be good eating.

During the years of 1971 to 1980 I used to trap along the river for muskrat. The water was dirty compared to years before the new tide gates were installed. I saw some land-locked striped bass in the early 1970's.

In recent years I have seen people netting herring on the harbor side as they jump up the small waterfalls on the outgoing tide from the river. Some appear to be entering the river.

I do hereby certify and make oath that the above statements made by me are true firsthand accounts.
